Short Term Placement Opportunities Long Term Placement Opportunities About TexasHHS We are the oldest and only full-time, residential program for learning disabled students in the United States. Our mission is to provide a truly enriched residential and college-preparatory education program. The school meets the unique learning needs of its students by delivering flexible, individualized instruction through highly trained teachers, counseling, and consultants, and is supported by strong family and community involvement. TexasHHS is accredited by the Accrediting Association of Independent Schools in the United States and by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

We provide special education services in early childhood, elementary, middle, and secondary grades, with in-home services provided to families with students who have severe mental retardation. TexasHHS is owned and operated by the Texas Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC). We are governed by the Texas Education Code and the Texas Health and Safety Code, and by the Texas Code of the Health and Safety Standards for Children with Mental Retardation. TexasHHS operates on a nonprofit basis, using funds appropriated by the legislature and supplemented by our independent, dedicated fundraising efforts. The school relies on donors, alumni, foundations, corporations and government agencies to fund a number of initiatives that support our mission, such as making sure that families of students receive the right amount of financial support, enhancing our academic programs, and improving our infrastructure and campus facilities. We are located in the Texas Department of Aging and Disability Services building, on the grounds of The University of Texas at Austin. We serve some of the most diverse and challenging students in the United States. Our students are provided an opportunity to be part of a truly diverse and academically rigorous community.The University of Kentucky has invested in a new confocal microscope to provide a resource for its research community and those of its sister institutions. This instrument will enhance a variety of research activities including the development of new biomedical tools to visualize tissues and cells, characterization of proteins and their localization in cells, and the study of molecular interactions within cells. The centralization of the confocal is a major reorganization in microscopy resources at the University. The confocal will be housed in a room with full staffing, adequate supplies, instrument maintenance and service, and a fully equipped reference laboratory. To help the research community obtain the maximum benefit from the confocal, the unit will 82157476af
